Conclusion

I am very grateful and blessed to end my degree program by having the final internship in France. Even it was tougher than I expected, I believe this is the best time and place to train myself right before I start my career in this industry. Jade must be cut and chiselled to make it a useful vessel. I believe I am and will be more flexible and better mobility in the future as I believe can manage myself and better adaptability after this 1 year experience in France. I am also learning to be more patience to myself and others in terms of working together with a difference cultural background because I understand how it is to be a minority in a social group. As the working hours are constantly long in this place, I believe I can work in any other environment which is similar or more intense. Never forgotten that, I strongly believe that I have improved my French language which may be useful in my future workplace and more understand about French cuisines, wines and culture will be very helpful in my future career without doubt.

As I have mentioned, I am more keen to work in an establishment which we can share a same goals and objective on a same line. At the same time after this experience, I believe there are more doors for me to explore more about food, beverages and culture in other part of the world. Until this establishment is stable and organized, I may not consider remaining in this restaurant. Or only if there is another job offer out of working in this restaurant.

Finally my bachelor's degree has came to an end. Over the past three years, the most valuable things I found is the passion of myself towards the food and beverage industry and it keeps me moving to continue explore and learn. After the knowledge of management I learnt in classroom, with the application of experiences that I gained from past working experiences, it fascinates me to be keener to meet and work with more people as there are Arts and Science theories behind is people service industry. Lastly, the experience I been through by working in group assignments, projects, making more friends and collaborate with different associates had teaches me a lot as a better person, team player and hopefully a better leader.

“Faith is to believe what you do not see; the reward of this faith is to see what you believe,” a quote by Saint Augustine. Today, I have more faith and confidence in myself when it comes to making decision, my mistakes from the past will lead me to the right path in the future. I believe there will be more adventures waiting ahead and I am ready.
